Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 9-13 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 9-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kaneko et al in view of Shevlin and Chen et al.

Regarding claims 9-13, Kaneko discloses a multimedia control generating system that communicates audio and video data, and whereby the implementation of classifying control information into groups is utilized, multiplexing control data, and data is transmitted simultaneously (Fig. 16, col. 3, line 67, col. 4, line 64-67, col. 7, line 35-60, col. 21, line 28-39, Abstract). However, Kaneko is silent on implementing an accumulator for accumulating groups. Kaneko is silent on utilizing an accumulator as associated with groups of control data. In analogous art, Shevlin discloses communicating data in a communication system whereby a plurality of group controlling bits are multiplexed, and multiple accumulators associated with multiplexing, storing, registering and controlling groups of controls bits (col. 14, line 2-65, col. 15, line 1-8, col. 16, line 30-33, col. 19, line 6-67), and Chen discloses (Abstract, Fig. 4 & 7, col. 3, line 1 thru col. 4, line 67, col. 9, line 1 thru col. 14, line 67) efficient retransmission of data, wherein the architecture includes accumulators, multiplexers for multiplexing of pilot data and control data, accumulation of packets, plurality of base stations, acknowledgment procedures associated with the destination device (communicating party/receiver). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to be motivated to implement accumulating groups of data as taught by the combined teachings of Shevlin and Chen with the teachings of Kaneko for the purpose of further managing the communication between devices.

Conclusion

1. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
